Brand Promise

At OpenGov, public service is personal.

We are passionate about our mission to power more effective and accountable government. Government that operates efficiently, adapts to change, and strengthens public trust. Some people say this is boring. We think it's the core of our democracy.

Four percent of Americans choose to work in local government. These dedicated few pave our roads, educate kids, mow the parks, provide clean water, generate electric power, manage taxpayer dollars, and respond to emergencies in the middle of the night. Yet our public servants are hamstrung by out-of-date technology, cumbersome processes, and low trust.

That's about to change. The next great wave of innovation is unfolding with AI, and it will impact everything—from the way we work to the way governments interact with their residents. Imagine a world where streetlights and bridges self-report the need for maintenance, where getting a construction permit isn't painful, and budget books are built in minutes not months. With automation as a superpower, public servants become more strategic, responsive, resilient, and efficient.

This is the world OpenGov is creating in partnership with our customers. It all starts with people. Because it's people who design technology, people who solve problems, and people who serve our communities. We build trust by sticking with customers beyond implementation, overcommunicating through challenges, and connecting leaders who help each other. And when there's trust, you can make change.

Local government is the most personal form of public service—it affects everyone in America, every day.

We are honored to support our customers as they strengthen their communities and our democracy.

The OpenGov Difference:

Donuts & Doorbusters

We're not your average software company.

Our purpose is to modernize local and state government for the good of our communities, country, and society. This is a place for those who want to make an impact every day.

It is hard, important work. Some say it's not worth it, or even impossible. We disagree. We aim to build an iconic institution that restores trust and excellence to the most important industry. Our public servants deserve better than "the way it's always been done."

That's why we challenge our customers to change and grow. They trust us to innovate and guide them toward the future. We show up with donuts, then bust down the doors to make an impact. We work as a team and go the extra mile, because the stakes are high.

Public service affects everyone in America, every day. We've touched 2,000 communities so far and we're just getting started.

Work with us and together we can build high-performance government for every community.
